Cocaine Nights. by. J.G. Ballard. 3.46 · Rating details · 6,178 ratings · 259 reviews. Club Nautico is an exclusive Spanish resort for the rich, retired British.
After five people die in an unexplained house fire, club manager Frank Prentice pleads guilty-but nobody believes him, least of all the police. When Frank's brother Charles arrives, intent on unravelling the mystery, gradually he uncovers the secret world behind the resort's civilized image.

~~Cocaine Nights by J.G. Ballard~~

Cocaine Nights is a pretty fast moving book, crisply written and not too deep, but the author does investigate the link between crime and creativity, demonstrates the danger of unbridled hedonism, and cleverly satirises the brain-dead, security-obsessed gated communities that were springing up in the 1990s.

In Cocaine Nights, J. G. Ballard stretches the taught canvas of his transgressive vision over the framework of old-fashioned mystery. The setting: the swank Spanish resort of Estrella de Mar, where young retirees from Europe's chillier climes bask in a lifestyle of endless leisure. Into the queasy beauty of this artificial environment steps Charles Prentice, a London travel writer who has come to visit his brother Frank, manager of Club Nautico—tennis and swim club by day, coked-up ...

J.G. Ballard: Cocaine Nights. David B. Livingstone.
There's something wrong with Estrella Del Mar, the lazy, sun-drenched retirement haven on Spain's Costa Del Sol. Lately this sleepy hamlet, home to hordes of well-heeled, well-fattened British and French expatriates, has come alive with activity and culture; the previously passive, isolated residents have begun staging boat races, tennis competitions, revivals of Harold Pinter plays, and lavish parties.

COCAINE NIGHTS. by J.G. Ballard □ RELEASE DATE: May 1, 1998. A bristling thriller pastiche from the surrealistic novelist (Rushing to Paradise, 1995, etc.) and peripatetic social observer (A User's Guide to the Millennium, 1996). Travel writer Charles Prentice, who seems to be carrying a lot of Ballard's baggage, is a man on a mission: to get his brother Frank out of a Costa del Sol prison.
