Oxford Bibliographies Online covers most subject disciplines within the social science and humanities, for more information visit www.oxfordbibliographies.com.

The legendary singing method of Manuel Garcia as illuminated by his student Hermann Klein. Written in New York City with accompanying gramophone recordings, Klein's "lost" manual reappears after more than a century with a new introduction that highlights its importance for modern teachers and students of singing."

In Healers in the Making, Kira Robison investigates medical instruction at the University of Bologna using the lens of practical medicine, examining both the formation of medical authority and innovations in practical medical pedagogy during the late medieval period.

Profusely illustrated with fine instances of architectural experimentation throughthe centuries, Experiencing Architecture manages to convey the intellectual excitement of superbdesign. From teacups, riding boots, golf balls, and underwater sculpture to the villas of Palladioand the fish-feeding pavilion of the Peking Winter Palace, the author ranges over the less-familiarbyways of designing excellence.At one time, writes Rasmussen, "the entire community tool part informing the dwellings and implements they used. The individual was in fruitful contact with thesethings; the anonymous houses were built with a natural feeling for place, materials and use and theresult was a remarkably suitable comeliness. Today, in our highly civilized society, the houseswhich ordinary people are doomed to live in and gaze upon are on the whole without quality. Wecannot, however, go back to the old method of personally supervised handicrafts. We must strive toadvance by arousing interest in and understanding of the work the architect does. The basis ofcompetent professionalism is a sympathetic and knowledgeable group of amateurs, of non-professionalart lovers."
